

AVTAL 2020

The negotiating delegations for Gemensamma Metall, Gruv, Kemiska fabriker, I-avtalet, Stål- och Metall, Teknikavtalet and Teko have had their first meetings since the national bargaining agreement was paused.

First reunion for IF Metall's delegations

Agreement that puts more money in your pocket. This is an overall picture of what the members of IF Metall's negotiating delegations said is important when they met for the first time since March.

Some 0 agreements that employers were flagging early on are not something that IF Metall's negotiating delegations agree with. In addition, there is another important point to bear in mind when it comes to the role of industry in the national bargaining agreement. "Our agreements shall set the standard and mark out the level of pay increases for the entire labour market. And this year this is perhaps more important than ever," says IF Metall's chairman Marie Nilsson.

Now that the first delegations are re-grouping in digital form to resume the national bargaining agreement on new collective agreements, many have quite positive reports to make.

Many companies are back to full speed after the summer, some even expect to employ more people. At the same time, there are companies where employees have been notified of redundancy and where the situation is not good at all.

This unevenness between different sectors of industry, but also in the labour market in general, makes it important to maintain stability.

"The industry's mark and the standardising of pay increase levels in society should stand for just that. A stability that gives pay increases and more money in everyone's pocket," says Marie Nilsson, who is also the negotiation leader for the Technical Agreement.
